October 2, 2020

The Honorable Mark T. Esper
Secretary
Department of Defense
1000 Defense Pentagon
Washington, D.C.  20301

Dear Secretary Esper:

We are investigating whether the Department of Defense (DOD) inappropriately used hundreds of millions of taxpayer dollars appropriated by Congress in the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act. These funds were intended to prioritize the domestic production and distribution of urgently needed medical supplies and personal protective equipment (PPE)—many of which are still in short supply—but DOD has reportedly diverted a significant portion of these funds to provide lucrative contracts to defense contractors for non-medical projects. As Congress considers additional coronavirus relief legislation, Americans deserve to know that the Trump Administration is following the law and using relief funds for their intended purpose—to aid the nationwide pandemic response.

More than six months after the Administration declared the coronavirus pandemic a national emergency, medical supplies and PPE shortages persist. For example, on August 14, 2020, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) published a list of devices, including “PPE, testing supplies and equipment, and ventilation-related products,” that are still in short supply. The Federal Emergency Management Agency has confirmed that “the supply of N95 respirators for medical use is not expected to catch up to demand until January 2021.” According to recent reports, internal documents from the Department of Health and Human Services show that the federal government has fewer than 90 million N95 masks available, well short of the Administration’s goal of 300 million. Some nurses have had to re-wear N95 masks “more than the five times recommended by the CDC.” In September, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Director Robert Redfield testified that CDC does not currently have the necessary resources, including adequate medical supplies, to effectively distribute a coronavirus vaccine.

On September 22, 2020, the Washington Post reported that hundreds of millions of dollars of Defense Production Act (DPA) funding, which Congress appropriated to DOD under the CARES Act to “prevent, prepare for, and respond to the coronavirus,” instead has been “funneled to defense contractors and used for making things such as jet engine parts, body armor, and dress uniforms.” The contracts reportedly include:

- $183 million to firms including Rolls-Royce and ArcelorMittal to maintain the shipbuilding industry; tens of millions of dollars for satellite, drone and space surveillance technology; $80 million to a Kansas aircraft parts business suffering from the Boeing 737 Max grounding and the global slowdown in air travel; and $2 million for a domestic manufacturer of Army dress uniform fabric.\(^5\)

DOD has argued that the goal of this spending is “offsetting financial distress” caused by the coronavirus crisis throughout the defense industrial base.\(^6\) There may be legitimate reasons to provide financial support to the U.S. defense industry during the pandemic, but the use of CARES Act-authorized DPA funds in this manner runs counter to Congress’ intent that these appropriations be prioritized to address shortages in medical supplies and equipment.\(^7\) This is especially true given the wide range of programs already in the CARES Act that support the private sector, including $17 billion for federal loans to businesses critical to our national security.

During consideration of the CARES Act, Chairwoman of the House Committee on Financial Services, Rep. Maxine Waters, explained on the floor of the House of Representatives:

> Congress is providing the increase of funding to carry out the Defense Production Act with the understanding that these funds are to be used to help expand our domestic productive capacity for critically needed medical supplies or equipment, to purchase such supplies or equipment where necessary and to address other needs that directly relate to meeting the emergency medical needs arising directly from the COVID–19 pandemic.\(^8\)

In its report accompanying the fiscal year 2021 defense appropriations bill, the Committee on Appropriations explained that using CARES Act funds to support the defense industrial base is “not the original intent of the funds.” The report explains, “The Committee’s expectation was that the Department would address the need for PPE industrial capacity rather than execute the funding for the [defense industrial base].”\(^9\) received these funds reportedly also received stimulus funding through other coronavirus relief programs.\textsuperscript{10}

On July 2, 2020, the Select Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Crisis held a hearing to address nationwide PPE and medical supplies shortages. At that hearing, Chairman Clyburn stated:

[T]o ensure this problem gets fixed, we need you to keep Congress apprised of your progress. I am therefore calling on FEMA, HHS, and DOD to provide this Committee with biweekly updates on the projected supply and demand for PPE and testing supplies.\textsuperscript{11}

Two weeks later, on July 14, 2020, the Select Subcommittee wrote to you to reiterate this request and seek documents related to DOD’s efforts to procure PPE, testing supplies, and other medical equipment during the coronavirus outbreak.\textsuperscript{12} To date, DOD has not produced the requested projections on supply and demand for PPE and testing supplies.

As communities across the United States continue to face critical PPE, medical supplies, and testing shortages due to President Trump’s failed response to the coronavirus pandemic, Congress and the American people deserve greater transparency from DOD about its use of supplemental relief funding and how those spending decisions are being made.

For these reasons, please provide the following documents and information by October 16, 2020:

1. For each DPA Title III contract awarded under the funds provided by the CARES Act to date, documents sufficient to show:
   a. Recipient;
   b. Contract amount;
   c. Date of award;
   d. Goods or services provided;
   e. Senior contracting officer;
   f. All relevant assessments or justifications for the contract;

g. Whether the contract recipient received other CARES Act funding; and
h. Whether the contract recipient has relevant past performance with the DOD;

2. All documents related to the decision to use CARES Act funding to stimulate the defense industrial base rather than to support production and distribution of PPE; and

3. All documents related to the award of DPA Title III contracts under the CARES Act.

Furthermore, please provide complete responses to the Select Subcommittee’s July 2, 2020, and July 14, 2020, requests by October 9, 2020, including but not limited to projections of supply and demand for PPE and testing supplies.

In addition, the Committees respectfully request a staff briefing by October 16, 2020, to address these issues.

The Committee on Oversight and Reform is the principal oversight committee of the House of Representatives and has broad authority to investigate “any matter” at “any time” under House Rule X. House Resolution 935 established the Select Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Crisis “to conduct a full and complete investigation” of “issues related to the coronavirus crisis,” including “executive branch policies, deliberations, decisions, activities, and internal and external communications related to the coronavirus crisis.”

An attachment to this letter provides additional instructions for responding to the Committees’ request. Consistent with these instructions, these requests are to be construed as continuing in nature.
